In the second part, you can always bring your family back from the dead, but only if he is willing to sacrifice a man he loves more than life itself. Just as Ever learns everything he can about his new powers as immortal, initiated in a dark, seductive world by his beloved damen, something terrible happens to him. As Ever's powers grow, Damen's is fading - suffering from a mysterious illness that threatens his memory, his identity, his life. Desperate to save her, Never travels to the mystical dimension of Summerland, revealing not only the secrets of Damen's past - the brutal, tortured history she hoped to keep hidden - but also the old text revealing during her work. With the approaching blue moon declaring its only window for travel, Ever is forced to decide between turning the clock back and rescuing his family from an accident that claimed them - or staying in the present and rescuing the dames, who become weaker every day...
